Bulletin for the Institute of Modern Culture

Foreword

Dining Tables at which Families Sit or Squat on Tatami in Modern Urban Houses .............................................. HIRAI-Kiyoshi... 1

Cookery of Potatoes from the End of the Taisho Era to the Early Showa Period
(1) Staple Dishes Using Potatoes —From the Viewpoint of Cookery Science .................................................. Atsuko Shimada and Miki Sekimoto... 22

The History of Food in Modern Japan (IV)
—Food Conditions Seen in Newspaper Topics during the Early Showa Period (1936–40) ........................................... Sumie Kato... 43

Cooking Oil & Fat and Their Use as Seen in Works Published in the Meiji and Taisho Eras —Especially in the Women’s Magazine Fujin no Tomo ................................................................. Kyoko Ohashi... 84

The Culture of Dress and Ornaments Worn by Modern Girls (Moga) ................................................................. Yuko Anzo and Makiko Koizumi... 98

Lifestyle in the Showa Era 40s: Apartment Developments, New Towns, and Residential Suburbs as Reported in Newspapers ................................................................. Kazuhiko Nishiwaki... 116

On “Indexes of the Improvement of Living Conditions” Issued by Fukushima Prefecture in 1931 ................................................................. Satomi Isono... 134

The Spread of the Movement for the Improvement of Living Conditions (1919–1933) as Seen in Fujin no Tomo —A Step toward Understanding How the Idea Was Absorbed by the Japanese Middle Class ................................................................. Kimiko Takeda and Hisae Kato... 144

A Talk Regarding Booklets —Researchers in the Institute of Modern Culture: Kimiko Takeda, Sumie Kato, HIRAI-Kiyosi, Atsuko Shimada, Kikuko Oda, Yuko Anzo, Yumiko Tsunoda, Kazuhiko Nishiwaki, Kyoko Ohashi, Kumiko Akiyama and Satomi Isono... 226

Contributors’ Profiles
Summaries of Lectures by Invited Specialists, 2007–8
Publication List of the Institute of Modern Culture

Showa Women’s University
September 2008